The Daily Bulletin.

Pledged to neither Sect nor Party.
But established for the benefit of all.

FRIDAY, JULY 23, 1886.

WHAT IS NOT A PARTY MEASURE?

The Advertiser is of opinion that the tax bill "could hardly be recognized as a party measure." The intelligent public have had an entirely different opinion all along, and the statement of our morning contemporary affords no ground for a change of the public belief. The original bill was introduced by a member of the Government party, who may reasonably be supposed to be in the Government confidence to an extent that no other member of the house is, and in the modified form in which it ultimately came up for consideration it was reported by the Government majority of the committee to which all tax bills were referred; the Government have been a unit in support of the bill from the time of its introduction, and have fought most vigorously for its passage; the mouth-piece of the Government out of the house advocated the measure with a vehemence that has been considered insulting by respectable people. Moreover, the Government and their spokesmen made a vigorous effort to rush the bill through its various stages, and make it the law of the land by the commencement of the present month, that its provisions might operate in the taxation of the current year; and the organ was on hand to stigmatize all who opposed it in the house as "obstructionists," and those who were averse to it out of the house as "tax-shirkers." Now that the bill is practically defeated, and the Government placed in a position where in Great Britain resignation or dissolution would follow, the public are coolly informed that "it is proper to say that so far as the Tax bill is concerned it could hardly be recognized as a party measure!" It is astonishing how a whole community may be misled by reaching rational conclusions from external appearances! As everything combined to designate the Tax bill as a Government measure, everybody considered and talked of it as such; and yet everybody was mistaken! The Advertiser says it could hardly be recognized as a party measure, and who will dare contradict the Advertiser? How shall we decide in future what is a party measure and what is not? Perhaps our contemporary will kindly publish a rule for public guidance!

DEPARTED WORTH.

William Jeffrey Patterson, Secretary of the Montreal (Canada) Corn Exchange, died in that city on the 12th of June. The deceased was a native of Glasgow, Scotland, and at his death was aged 70 years and 8 months. His was an eventful career. When a young man he was an anti-slavery editor in the Western States. A pro-slavery mob sacked his office, throwing all the plant into a river. Not having the local newspaper obituary before us, we are unable to give date and place of this event. Mr. Patterson was commercial editor of the Montreal Witness for several years, in which position he displayed the aptitude for commercial statistics, which marked him out as the most suitable candidate for a vacancy in the Secretaryship of the above organization. When the writer of these lines was leaving Montreal two years ago, Mr. Patterson disclosed to him an earnest desire for promoting closer trade relations between this kingdom and the Dominion of Canada, requesting that Hawaiian trade statistics be furnished him regularly. This request has been complied with, and there is no doubt Mr. Patterson made good use of the information supplied. A memorial card received by last mail reminds us of the duty of making this mention of the death of a friend of Hawaii, so eminent in the commercial circles of a neighboring country. We hope some fruit of his interest in the promotion of trade between this country and his own, may be seen before very long in an enlargement of the foreign commerce of this kingdom.

The city of Providence, R. I., celebrated its 250th anniversary on the 24th of June with a grand military and civic parade, and other demonstrations. Next day, the Evening Bulletin of that city, came out in a 20 page edition, giving a complete history, with cuts of the city and its principal buildings. In introducing the department of journalism, the fact is noted that at the time of the founding of the city, "only six newspapers had ever been published in the world, and only one of them in the English language."

THE LEGISLATURE.

Rep. Hayselden said he had no intention to indulge in any personalities, but he understood all the companies doing business here had evaded the law under a technicality. The amendment was carried, and the section passed as amended.

On motion of Rep. Hayselden, the committee rose, reported progress, and asked leave to sit again on Saturday next. The report was adopted, and after notices of committee meetings were given, the house adjourned, on motion of Rep. Kaulukou, at 4:35, till 10 o'clock tomorrow.

SIXTY-FOURTH DAY.

FRIDAY, JULY 23rd.

The Legislature met at 10 A. M. Vice-President Rep. Aholo in the chair. Prayer was offered by Rev. J. Waiamanu, Chaplain. The following members answered the roll: Ministers Gibson, Creighton, Kanoa and Dare; Nobles Cleghorn, Wilder and Martin; Reps. Hayselden, Kean, Baker, Amara, Brown, Kaulia, Pahia, Kaunamano, Wight, Nahale, Nahunu, Kekoa, Kalua, Aholo, Kaulukou, Richardson, Carle, Kaai, Thurston, Paehaole and Palohau. The minutes were read in English and Hawaiian, and approved.

REPORTS.

Minister Gibson, from the Printing Committee, presented, ready for distribution, Rep. Kaulukou's bill to provide for five Judges of the Supreme Court, Rep. Dole's two bills for amendments to the Constitution, Ministerial statements of departmental indebtedness, and the new rule of the house.

Rep. Brown presented the following report of the select committee of five on the bills relating to Road Supervisors and the expenditure of road taxes, submitting a substitute bill:—
To the Hon. JOHN S. WALKER, President of the Legislative Assembly, Sir: The select committee to which was referred several petitions praying that the Act of 1883, erecting Road Supervisors in Chief for the Islands, be repealed, also an act introduced by the Hon. Mr. Kaunamano, to repeal said law; an act introduced by the Hon. Mr. Pahia to regulate the working and making of roads, and an act introduced by the Hon. Mr. Kaulukou to provide for the appointment of road commissioners, etc., respectively report as follows, viz: that they have considered the several matters referred to them and find that the operation of the law of 1883, which was expected would be more effective and less expensive than the old system of somewhat irresponsible district road supervisors, has, on the contrary, been of very little use so far as the working and improvement of roads are concerned. It has not been more economical either, in the opinion of the committee.

On the Island of Oahu considerable road work has been done, and, on the whole, the roads out of the district of Honolulu are in better condition than for many years past. But if this is the case here, absolutely nothing has been done on the other islands. Road taxes have been deposited in the general treasury and have not been expended on the roads in the outer districts and more remote portions of the Islands. This is wholly wrong and totally contrary to the intent of the law of road tax. This burden is not imposed on the people of Kauai, of Puna, of Hana, of Molokai, of Waimea, or any other part of the country distant from Honolulu or Oahu, either that it should be used for the streets in Honolulu or the roads on Oahu, or to be expended in the payment of salaries, purchase of arms and accoutrements, or to be used in any foreign country on foreign missions of doubtful value; and the expenditure by the Cabinet of the road money for any object other than the roads in each district is clearly in defiance of the object and intent of any law imposing road taxes.

The nearly universal outcry from the whole country against the law which permitted such a violation of law, but voiced the outraged sense of the people who have been defrauded of their rights. The prayer of the various petitions is answered by the bills repealing that act; but to repeal the old law does not place matters just as they should be, and Mr. Kaulukou's bill very nearly meets the requirements. The committee find, however, that said bill is not complete and full enough to meet all of the necessities of the case, and they have prepared and herewith submit a bill which covers the points embraced in Mr. Kaulukou's, but is more explicit. It provides for a Board of Road Commissioners in each taxation district, one of whom shall be Road Supervisor; for their duties in consulting and advising on road work; for the responsibilities and duties of the Supervisor; that all road moneys shall be used in the several districts, and that any surplus funds shall be kept as a contingent fund.

The committee therefore recommend that the petitions and bills referred to them be laid upon the table, and herewith submit a bill covering the matters referred to them, which they recommend the Assembly to pass.

Dated Honolulu, July 23, 1886.

Cecil Brown,

W. R. Castle,

J. A. Kaulukou.

I agree with the general recommendations of the report, but must dissent from certain strictures on Ministerial action.

WALTER M. GIBSON.

On motion of Rep. Palohau the report was adopted, and, on motion of Rep. Brown, the bill was read a second time by title and referred to the Printing Committee to be printed.

RESOLUTIONS.

Rep. Kaulukou, on suspension of the rules, read a first time an act to amend the law of last session, granting a street railroad franchise to W. R. Austin. The bill was also read a second time by title and referred to the Committee on Public Lands.

Rep. Kaunamano moved that the Printing Committee report up the bills relating to the Hawaiian Board of Health. Carried.

Rep. Richardson read a first time an act to amend sections 214, 218, 219 and 221, Civil Code, relating to prisons and houses of correction.

Rep. Kaulukou moved that the Secretary be instructed to return petitions of Awa and Ahu, for compensation for work on the roads in Kauai. Carried.

ORDER OF THE DAY.

On motion of Rep. Kaai, the house proceeded to the order of the day, resolving into committee of the whole on the Appropriation Bill, Rep. Kean in the chair.

The item of $30,000 for Foreign Missions, pending when the committee rose, was the first to come up. Minister Creighton trusted the house would not refuse to vote the amount of $30,000 for Foreign Missions. He had taken some pains to enquire into the matter, and unless the house desired to reverse the whole foreign policy of the Government it would grant this money. His predecessor had recommended in his report that commissioners be sent to Samoa and other parts of Polynesia, and an envoy to reside in Europe, also a representative to Mexico and Central America, the latter, however, having been dropped for the present. But it had been deemed advisable to withdraw from that position, and his predecessor therefore recommended a reduction to $30,000. Included in that sum were the expenses of international exhibitions. The New Orleans and Louisville exhibitions had cost $8,000, and he thought it would be advisable to have this country represented at the Jubilee Exposition in London next year, which would cost $10,000. Reference had been made to the expenditures in 1880-1882, which were said to have been only $6,000, but the expenditure in that period, which was before his predecessor took office, was about $12,000, as he had ascertained from the stubs in the Foreign office. Therefore the appropriation did not always represent the actual expenditure. If the money was not absolutely required he could assure the Assembly that it would not be spent. It would be unfortunate to cripple the Foreign office, for great exigencies might arise. The great powers expected more than mere sentiment from this country. The Government should be one of fast as well as of sentiment. He considered the amount asked would barely meet necessary expenditures.

Rep. Dole remarked that this was 50 percent more than was asked last period. He complained of the general terms, the vague generalities, in which the vote was asked. The Minister had not given them facts on which to weigh satisfactorily the necessities of the case. He argued at length against spending such a large amount on mere sentiment, show and nonsense, which did not do this country a particle of good. Reference was made to the beneficent work of religious missionaries in the neighboring groups, and the speaker contended that the advent of political missionaries there from this kingdom would destroy the wholesome influence already exercised by Hawaii, through the agencies referred to, among those islands.

At noon, on motion of Rep. Kaulukou, the house took a recess to 1:30.
